

ABSTRACT

A disposable chromatography cartridge for separating a chemical contained in a solution, the cartridge including a vessel having an inlet and outlet and a flexible wall that is deformable by externally applied force so as to reduce a volume within said vessel, and a monolith chromatography stationary phase inside said vessel. Also disclosed are chromatography apparatus using such a cartridge, separating a chemical in a solution using such a cartridge, and a method of making such a cartridge.

20169877.doc

20169877.doc